America represents so much dead loss to their parent State in human—the most valuable of all—capital. They go to increase the strength of the United States. But British colonists who go to Australia, Canada and New Zealand are not lost to us; their energy is only transferred from one portion of the empire to another. A country without colonies must grow weaker as its resources get exhausted, and its population goes on increasing. More than that, intercourse does not cease between those who leave and those who remain. Commerce between them continues to be carried on.

The weighty reasoning of Sir Alexander Galt should be well considered by those who on the strength of a few shallow and unsound theories would break up an empire which has taken centuries to form. When we come to examine the means which should be taken to ensure this union the ground is more debatable. Here theory is of little value. Certain general principles may, however, be allowed. A policy which holds good under one set of conditions may not be the best under another. Our treatment of the colonies must not be in discord with the natural development of the race. So much is easily said, and while wrapped in generalities will be accepted by both parties. But our treatment of the colonies can be managed on no cut and dry mathematical rules. We must take up each difficulty as it occurs, and consider it on its own merits. Sir Alexander Galt frankly enough showed how he would apply the principles he has laid down to the condition of Ireland. While recognizing that coercion laws are highly necessary, he considers that the dissatisfaction of the sister country never will be removed until some kind of Home Rule is granted. He is in accord with the Canadians, who took Mr. Gladstone's hint literally, and asked that this should be done. The tranquility of Ireland is a matter of importance to Canada, because a Fenian outbreak might involve war with the United States. Sir Alexander Galt, however, failed to take into account two modifying circumstances of the utmost importance. The illustrations we have had lately of the character of even leading Irishmen form strong presumptive evidence against their making any right use of local self-government at this time. Even if it were otherwise advisable to grant Home Rule, the people would have to be educated to use it properly. But the second reason is the more important. We know that Irishmen are dissatisfied, and we know that they attribute their misery to their subjection to Great Britain. As it happens, however, one of the most able and temperate of Irish Home Rulers has just published a non-political essay upon the peasantry of Ireland, in which he says they work for wages often more than twice as much as in any other part of the world, and are frequently free to face with starvation. Here we have the true reason for dissatisfaction. The Irish peasant is miserable, and blindly blames England where he should blame the poverty and bad cultivation of his own land. Local self-government would not increase wages, would not build better houses, would not make the land more productive. That it is asked is no reason why it should be given, unless the request is accompanied by some proof of probable efficacy. While agreeing with so much said by Alexander Galt, we are obliged to differ with him on this very important point.

The Brandon Daily Mail

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1883.
TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The proprietors of the Mail desire to state that they have made arrangements with the publishers of the Northwest Farmer to club that journal and the Weekly Mail for the low price of $2.50 in advance per year. This is an offer which no doubt farmers will appreciate as it gives them the best agricultural paper in the country as well as the best weekly in Western Manitoba, at a subscription very little in advance of that of one of them.

BRANDON BUDGET.

By the Manitoba Gazette we notice Mr. Frank Burnett, of Millford, has been appointed guardian of game for the section in which he resides.

The tail end of a pretty good sized blizzard caught the city last night, and for an hour or two made matters lively for those who happened to be abroad.

Frederick's new ad., in which he states he has on hand a large stock of sheet music, was unavoidably crowded out. Look for it to-morrow.

The painters are at work on the new station, and it will not be many days before it will be ready for occupation. The employees will no doubt be glad when new and more pleasant quarters are ready for their reception.

A necktie social will be held at the hall, near Mrs. Johnston, near Eighth Street, next Thursday evening. A social of this kind is always amusing, and those who attend will no doubt enjoy themselves very much.

Messrs. McKay, Marshall, Collins, O'Brien, Brundage, Combs, Chubb and Lyne, returned yesterday from the end of the track. They report delightful weather and a good time, and feel that they could go through about once every week, as the trip was a very pleasant one.

The ladies of the C. M. Church of this city are arranging to hold a bazaar early in May. From the energy and spirit displayed by the ladies of the above congregation on past occasions, we predict a grand success for the enterprise now on hand, and no doubt a good round sum realized to increase the fund of the church. So mote it be.

THE $15,000 IS GONE.

It is a fact that everybody could not get the $15,000, but as Doctor of Hallduff was the lucky man, we wish him long life and happiness with his prize. The momentous question now is, who is going to get the $2,500, the $5,000, $10,000, or the large lot of $5000, $2500, $1500 or $1000 that are to be given away by the Ottawa Orphanage in their Free Gift Concert, which takes place in May. The management of this concert is in the hands of reliable men, and the distribution will be made on the same broad honorable principles as that of the Masonic brethren. The object of the Ottawa Orphanage is to furnish their hall, and establish a long felt want, at the capital—a free public library. The agency for Brandon has been placed in the hands of our express agents, Messrs. Fortier and Bucke, and they will make the business boom.

BRANDON TO MOOSE JAW.

A TRIP TO THE WEST.

Several of Our Citizens Do the Country.

And Take in Regina, Moose Jaw and Tonawaga on the C. P. R.

Last Monday eight of our citizens took the afternoon train west, their destination being Regina and the end of the track. Those who composed the party were a band of light-hearted gentlemen who, no matter where they are, are bound to enjoy themselves, and perhaps the C. P. R. has never seen a crowd who made the most of every situation more thoroughly and ready to turn every passing incident to account. The weather throughout the week was excellent, and as the sun rose each morning, it gave the travellers to understand that although blizzards might be in their minds, the weather was not. There was no snow on the ground, and the roads were dry and smooth. All stopping places along the line were viewed with more or less critical eyes, and mental notes made of the situation, appearance and probable prospects. A number of the places are commented upon favorably, and of the country the pilgrims speak in praise. After an all night journey the much talked of and wonderful Regina is reached, and as the travellers step from the train a feeling of "I'm kind of sold" took possession of them. There before them were a number of huts and shacks, scattered promiscuously about. Apparently no attention being paid to streets, or thoroughfares, and nothing to indicate that the place was any better than an unsurveyed Indian village. On going about it was discovered that the inhabitants were compelled to melt snow to procure water as there was but little in the creek—and that little was unfit for use. The people are very hopeful of the future, but our travellers saw but little on which such hopes could be based, for the town site looked altogether too flat and squat when compared with Brandon. A move was made a few hours later for Moose Jaw, and here the wanderers found the Eldorado they had been in search of. Everything was booming, and business appeared to be bustling. Workmen, to the number of about 150 were at work erecting boarding places, houses, stores, etc. Messrs. Shepherd & Langdon have all their storehouses full of supplies, and are in a few days to erect a storehouse capable of holding 50,000 bushels of oats. They are wintering 500 horses and mules at this point, and their stables are very extensive. The animals are allowed to roam over the prairie at will during the day, but at night are taken in and stabled. Sixteen men are employed in feeding them. One of the spies from our city interviewed the veterinary surgeon in charge, and inquired how the water supply held out. He was informed that so far there had been no difficulty, and abundant supply could be had from the two creeks, and that it was pure and good. The travellers went over the site thoroughly and gave it as their opinion that next to Brandon Moose Jaw will be the leading city west. The situation is good, and there is not a doubt but that before next fall it will be a place of considerable importance, and that it will continue to grow and extend until it will be a large city.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

The Opinion of a Traveller.

To the Editor Brandon Mail.

Sir:—Will you kindly give space in your columns to the opinion of a stranger who has on passing, being highly gratified with the outlook, and more what may be looked upon as the near future. Judging from what has been done with the scarcity of material in the past year, the future success of Brandon may truly be said to be solidly established. It is a healthy well grown baby of eighteen months existence. If the little "up" progress during this summer as energetically as it has during the past, he will step, at one bound, right up into his manhood, and put to blush many of the neighboring localities, that have made greater pretensions to fame and position than Brandon—the prairie flower. As a stranger for a future city, on here on the discount, I hold that Brandon has no equal, as a healthy spot on the face of this nation.

The clean, dry and healthy position selected, the ample supply of clear water, the healthy state of all your streets, the easily obtained material for making every thoroughfare first-class, the abundance of the surrounding country, it being acknowledged to be one of the most fertile belts in the great West. Your proximity to the Assiniboine, with the Saskatchewan just a few miles north, your form a combination, that cannot be surpassed on this line of the C. P. R. To all these natural advantages, add the grand, sturdy, and highly educated class of young settlers that are to be found here, and the production of a grand future for Brandon, as one that cannot be easily disputed. Your capital on this continent I have here had a sharp eye, looking with great pride on the production of those who are struggling to build up a city. Their early preparation to successfully combat the commonest enemy of all, thickly populated places, has been timely and judiciously made. It is a real business energy, has no regard for age, sex or nationality. Heedless of the past, and the dark hour of night, and in a moment's time a track of desolation to mark his ruthless course made over what but a few moments before was a scene of human industry, and a line of business prosperity. In many of the old towns of Ontario, with double, triple, the population of Brandon, they are for behind hand, in affording position in respect to their business men. To sum up your story, and the extreme interest in keeping her ready for action, now in the house of security may seem an unimportant thing. To change their position to wake them up out of a mistaken dream, put let a blaze sweep over the business part of Brandon, and fairly wipe her off the slate, and my word for it, they will find to their cost, that the present expense is not a day on the wheel. Some even under such disaster, will console themselves with an easier success policy. This also must remember that at no stage of the game is their loss of time, loss of business interest, and that time now this winter is no time. The wisdom of this early looking the horse on the line is, in the hands of the horse, Brandon must doubly take a head position. In the past three years I have heard up a record of over forty thousand miles on the iron rails, and should know something about things. If the Grand View House is to be taken as a specimen, both out of track for Brandon, why Brandon certainly takes the whole cake. For eleven years, and the time, luxury of life is a weary transfer—a easy, leading to rest and the ultimate of all bliss. The Grand View is full of them, and Brandon can justly point with pride to a hotel that is not surpassed for home, and home comforts, either in Montreal, Ottawa, and even Toronto. Were I an intending settler, Brandon would catch me before any other point, I have yet struck in the North West.

Yours very truly,
The Old Man.
Brandon, Feb. 22, 1883.

P. S.—The P. R. may seem a little old and scholarly, but when passing the above I learn that your steamer is in a bad condition. This is a grave error, and no time should be lost in repairing all defects. Even in the early winter of your buildings today, if a configuration susceptible, your business people would be made to look, fluently, the the the position in which you are now placed.

The Old Man.
